Huddersfield

Huddersfield is the 11th largest town in the UK and is steeped in a long history of politics, sport and the industrial revolution. It is the birthplace of rugby league, Harold Wilson and Sir Patrick Stewart. Huddersfield used to be one the biggest exports of textiles but web design is now the export out of Huddersfield. The largest contemporary music festival also takes place in Huddersfield every year.
The University of Huddersfield

The University of Huddersfield was founded in 1992, previously being called Huddersfield Polytechnic. It currently has over 18,000 students enrolled in courses. In the past 10 years over 70 million pounds has been spent on 5 new state of the art buildings with others still under construction.

The University offers a range of impressive venues for those looking to hold a conference, meeting, exclusive dinner, wedding reception, charity or any special event.
Our Venues

The University of Huddersfield has an extensive range of rooms and facilities available in both modern and historical settings to suit your requirements:

- Flexible Function Rooms for special events
  The award winning Oastler building is home to our four function rooms. Each room can either be a tiered lecture theatre or a flat space with tables and chairs. The four small rooms can become two large rooms.

- Tiered Lecture Theatres
  Our modern comfortable lecture theatres have tiered seating to accommodate between 90 to 280 delegates.

- Meeting rooms
  Located in both modern and historical buildings we have a variety of fixed boardroom style rooms seating up to 20 people.

- Concert halls
  The converted church facility of St Pauls Hall is fully equipped with a pipe organ, Steinway and Yamaha pianos. The hall has 220 fixed tired seats but has a capacity of 400 (inc performers)

- Classrooms
  We have a wide variety of modern classroom layouts to offer that will meet your requirements

All our rooms contain AV equipment
